Action

Many of our favourite places to shop might not be our favourite if we were to look into their supply chains and factories.

Show support for brands that are paving the way for proper treatment of their staff by buying from them and not giving your money to brands which have records of child labour and human rights abuses. Not all high street brands can all be painted with the same brush, so we will need to do some research into who is doing what for this important cause.

For instance, organisations such as Labour Behind the Label produce a yearly report of well-known brands' efforts in this regard.
